The Man of Mood

Edgar Allan Poe was the man who created horror, detective, and short stories. Although the man of mystery Edgar Allan Poe is deceased, we still learn and appreciate him today. Poe was a very mysterious man. People thought that he dabbled in drugs and abused alcohol, since his writing had dark moods in them. Some of Poe's most famous work includes the short story "The Tell-Tale Heart," and the poems "The Raven," and "Annabel Lee." Some people know Poe as the father of the short story and the inventor of the detective story; although, he was also known as the national treasure for his literary work since most of the famous writers were from Europe. In conclusion, Poe is still famous today.

King Tut Day

November 4th

November 4th is a day to celebrate the day that his tomb was discovered. On this day in 1922, Carter Howard found the buried tomb, making Tut the most popular Egyptian pharaoh of the modern world. Over 3,000 years ago, King Tut became the King of Egypt at the young age of 9. Unfortunately, his ruling was a little short (1333 B.C.- 1324 B.C.) as he died at the age of 19.

History of Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving's origin started in 1621. The Wampanoags and the Pilgrims shared a feast. The feast lasted three days and three nights. Over time it started to be a tradition, and now we celebrate Thanksgiving, a holiday which we share what we are thankful for.

National Diabetes Month

Diabetes happens when your blood sugar goes higher than what it supposed to be. This happens when your pancreas does not produce enough insulin. There are 2 different types of people with diabetes. One type of diabetes is type one diabetes. Type one diabetes is were over time your pancreas stops working, so you have to give yourself insulin shots or get a insulin pump. You also have to take insulin every time you eat something, or if your blood sugar goes high. You have to eat something with sugar if it goes low. I have an insulin pump because when I was 11 I got diagnosed with type one diabetes. If you know anyone with diabetes ask them when they got diagnosed and ask them how they manage it. I love answering questions that people ask me about type one diabetes. Type one diabetes never slows me down, I hope it never slows anyone else down.

For type two diabetes you have to still give yourself insulin, but not as much. My grandpa only has to give himself a shot in the morning and at night. For type two diabetes you can get rid of it, if you have a A1C below 7 every time you go to the doctor. For both type one diabetes and type two diabetes you have to give yourself insulin and eat something with carbs or sugar to get it back to a more normal number. I enjoy being different from most people, diabetes is a part of my life. I am still able to do everything that everyone else can do, I just have to be more careful. I hope everyone is having an amazing and marvelous day.
